Modified Plan Principles Approved By Committee

DECIDE TO CIRCULATE PETITIONS

Citizens Group Takes Action at Meeting Held Here on Friday

PRINCIPLES of the modified water conservation and flood control program were supported by the Citizens' Water committee at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Farm Bureau office, marking a pronounced swing behind the less expensive program which would serve the flood control needs of the county.

New prospects for unity upon the county's flood control and water conservation program loomed today as a result of the action of the committee, which heretofore had advocated the more expensive flood control plan defeated by voters on October 4.

Action of the committee, according to W. H. Spurgeon, committee chairman, will lead to the circulation of petitions to the board of supervisors asking for another bond election. These petitions state in the preamble that the petitioners recognize the urgency of the county problems.

Unlike the original petition which was to have been circulated asking for an election on the more expensive plan, the altered petitions conclude with a plea for an election "upon a plan which will meet the approval of the federal government, retain for our use a portion of the federal grant and provide for the minimum needs of the county."

This is identical with what proponents of the modified plan have advocated. H. H. Cotton, state Democratic leader, and Frank Y. McLaughlin, state WPA director, have twice assured citizens of Orange county through The Register that the government will hold any part of the federal grant "earmarked" for Orange county to aid in the water program.

"The committee," Spurgeon said, "recognizes that the county problem must be solved by engineers. It trusts the discretion of the county supervisors, guided by experience obtained in the recent bond election, to pass the financial features of any plan to be presented to the voters. The committee is firm in a belief that there is a basis upon which water leaders can agree, and it desires that the supervisors shall feel free to exercise the widest latitude in considering such plans."

The petition to be circulated says: "Recognizing the urgency of the problem confronting Orange county, we, the undersigned voters, respectfully request your honor-

SCIENTISTS ALAY FEARS OVER QUAKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Scientists, architects, and engineers stilled the earthquake fears of the east today. The mighty towers of New York, Chicago, Boston and other cities would easily withstand worse quakes than the world has ever known, they said.

Damage in the 17 states that felt yesterday's quake was slight but great public interest was evinced in the probable effect of a major tremor.

According to Chief Engineer Othman Hermann Ammann of the port of New York authority, the Holland tunnel, the Midtown-Hudson tunnel, the George Washington bridge, and the Tri-Borough bridge in New York are all flexible enough to withstand any shock ever recorded.

"We can safely say no conceivable earthquake could jar these buildings enough to cause any damage," he said.

NEW CITY HALL TO BE READY FOR OCCUPANCY DECEMBER 1

SANTA ANANS were being given their first glimpse today of the Santa Ana City hall, as it will look when completed, as workmen removed many of the scaffolds surrounding the new structure.

The scaffolding on the north side of the building and at the rear has been removed, but scaffolding on the main street side will remain in place for several days yet, pending the completion of the tower of the City Hall, as yet not completed.

SONTAG TAKES LONG LEASE ON NICHOLS STORE

Will Spend $20,000 on New Drug Store; To Occupy Site Next Month

THE SONTAG Drug company of Los Angeles yesterday signed a long time lease on the building at 115 East Fourth street, formerly occupied by the Nichols Drug Store and will take possession immediately.

Maurice Sontag, president of the company, told The Register today that alterations would start on the new location immediately and that the store hoped to be in a position to move from its present location at 114 East Fourth street, directly across the street, by Christmas.

He declared the store would be made the largest drug store of its kind in Orange county and stated that some $20,000 would be spent in installing equipment in the new building which would make the store outstanding in this line of merchandise in Santa Ana.

The new store will have the latest soda fountain equipment, the latest food department and its fixtures will be new throughout. The Sontag store in Santa Ana, managed here for the past two years by Al Rosenberg has outgrown its present location to such an extent that efforts have been made to sign the lease at the new location for several weeks. With no other location available for its purposes, Sontag has managed to accommodate its crowds in the small store it now has here, expecting at any time to receive the information it received today that the new location would soon be available.

The lease signed was held by the C. C. Chapman company, and the property is a part of the old Hervey estate here.

NEW EARTH TREMOR IS FELT IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 2.—(UP)—A slight earth tremor was felt in the Buffalo area today. It was described by Rev. John P. Delaney, S. J., seismologist at Canisius college, as an "aftershock."

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 2.—(UP)—W. G. Carroll, seismologist of the Ontario Meteorological bureau, reported today a slight earth tremor was registered on his seismograph about 9:30 a. m.

The tremor was noticeable in Toronto, and reports from Sudbury, Peterboro and other Ontario cities advised slight disturbances.

QUESTION JOHN ROOSEVELT CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 2.—(UP)—John Roosevelt is to be interviewed in connection with a beating administered to an elderly janitor at Harvard's Dunster House last Saturday, police said today.

The president's youngest son, a Harvard sophomore, has explained that he attended the cocktail party that preceded the attack. But he said he and his girl friend left said he and his girl friend left, 67, was beaten.

Asked whether he would interview Roosevelt, Police Captain John J. Canney said:

"Of course I'm going to question young Roosevelt and everybody who appears to have any connection with this case."

Seismograph Is Blamed For Quakes

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 2.—(UP)—Canisius college authorities are liable to have a damage suit on their hands if another earthquake shakes Buffalo. An irate woman telephoned the college's seismologist and complained that the footboard of her bed had been shaken loose by yesterday's quake. "It won't cost you anything this time, but you certainly have a lot of nerve," she said angrily. "The next time you start an earthquake with that seismograph machine you'll pay for the damage."

HURL CHARGES IN SPLIT OVER RELIEF PLANS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(UP)—A bitter factional fight over the State Relief commission plan for Los Angeles and Orange counties was reported in Local relief circles today.

Embittered over approval this week of a cooperative plan of relief, chairman Ralph E. Janney of San Diego was reported threatening to resign if the program is carried out.

Conservative members of the commission, including Janney, charged approval of the cooperative plan was "pushed through" by liberal members at Sacramento this week during absence of many of its opponents.

Janney headed the conservative faction. I. Irving Lipsitch of Los Angeles, the liberal.

The question became a public issue last night when Rhea Crawford Spilvato, associate pastor of Angeles Temple and caustic critic of relief administration, attacked the proposed cooperative program in charges in which she charged it would wreck many small business men who depend upon relief clients for a good share of their business.

The cooperative plan, as advocated by Winston Carleton, state cooperative director, proposes an expenditure of $4,500,000—$3,000,000 in state funds and $1,500,000 in federal funds—for the purchase of supplies and the construction of stores and factories in Orange and Los Angeles counties. Products of these cooperative ventures would be sold to local relief clients.

The distribution to unemployed persons in lieu of part of their cash budgets.

Mrs. Spilvato branded the program "insane," declaring it would "ruin" thousands of independent merchants.

REETED eagerly by the entire county, rain which began to fall early this morning brought precipitation ranging from .29 of an inch in Santa Ana to .44 of an inch in Newport Beach.

Farmers and ranchers throughout the county were thankful for the downfall, which followed an unusually long fall dry spell, which saw one of the most disastrous wind storms in the history of the county.

Only those hundreds of Santa Anans who were planning on attending the U. C. L. A.-California game in Los Angeles today scowled at the rainclouds, as they visualized huddling under damp newspapers for the football classic.

The 1935 rainfall is far under the figure reached at this time last year in all parts of the county, and slightly under the general average for this time of year.

Official weather forecasts were for continued showers tonight, and clearing Sunday.

The fall was general over the county and quite evenly distributed, with the north coast section getting slightly more than inland.

Low temperature in Santa Ana was 47 degrees at midnight, and maximum 66 yesterday at noon. Humidity was 89 per cent.

TROJAN TICKETS WORTHLESS LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Yes, the Bruins of U. C. L. A. are forging ahead and the old Trojans of Southern California are slipping fast.

In a final effort to obtain a good seat for the California-U. C. L. A. game today, a fan inserted the following want ad in a Los Angeles paper:

"Two U. S. C. season tickets for one U. C. L. A.-California ticket. Box A 6037."

Light and telephone service was disrupted for half an hour as the storm raged over Santa Cruz.

Lights were extinguished completely in Del Rio City and slight disruptions of service were reported in San Francisco areas.

The weather bureau said the storm centered in the vicinity of Stockton.

Although the wind and rains brought slight relief from subnormal temperatures which have prevailed for four days, icy temperatures were expected to set in again as the disturbance relaxed.

Truck crops of the Santa Clara and San Joaquin valleys were reported damaged by the unsettled weather. Stanislaus county estimated damage at $50,000 while the Salinas-Watsonville lettuce region anticipated extensive losses.

While elemental violence constituted the greatest immediate danger to California farmers, agriculturists of the Pacific northwest continued to suffer from cold for the fourth successive day.

Truck Crops Over State Are Injured

Northern California Feels Brunt of High Winds; Shipping Blocked

By United Press

WINTER in violent mood lashed the Pacific coast from Canada to Mexico today.

Freezing temperatures, howling gales and heavy downpours of rain accompanied the onslaught. Damage, principally to unharvested crops in California, Oregon and Washington fields, was expected to run into millions of dollars.

The storm, sweeping southward, reached a climax last night in the San Francisco Bay region and California's central valleys.

Lives of 13 men were endangered and San Francisco Bay shipping was imperiled when a dynamite laden barge, breaking free from the Grace Line freighter Condor, pitched in churning waters and a buffeting gale for several hours.

Coast guardsmen aboard the cutters Shoshone and Gabite brought the menace under control, however. They removed the 13 men from the storm-tossed lighter and secured the runaway craft at its berth.

Twelve hundred cases of dynamite were aboard the lighter. The men on the craft were longshoremen who had transferred the explosives from the freighter.

50-Mile Gales

Gales reached velocities of 40 to 50 miles an hour as the coast guard boats and a San Francisco police vessel rushed to the rescue in response to distress signals. For a time it appeared the smaller craft would founder.

Small craft and fishing boats were warned to run for cover before the full force of the storm was unleashed.

Violence of the storm was not confined to the sea. On land a whipping windstorm, accompanied by heavy rainsqualls, assailed the peninsula and valley areas.

Telephone poles and trees were toppled, power and communications lines were blown down and fires broke out.

Force of the wind at some points was estimated at 60 to 80 miles an hour.

Fanned by the gale, a blazing house at Menlo Park threatened for a time to spread to surrounding structures.

An airplane pilot who braved the hazardous conditions reported numerous light flashes from the ground as he flew over the San Joaquin valley. The flashes were presumed to come from grounded high tension wires.

VOTE TAKEN BY LEAGUE HEADS TODAY

Most Drastic Peace Time Penalty Effective Minute After Midnight

(Copyright, 1935, by United Press) GENEVA, Nov. 2.—(UP)—The full penalties committee of the League of Nations, comprising 52 nations, today fixed November 18 as the date for the start of the league's economic and financial offensive against Italy.

On that date, the nations voting for the measure will put into effect a boycott of all Italian goods and the denial to Italy of a list of selected products believed essential to her industry.

After the vote, Premier Pierre Laval of France announced that his country would continue its friendly effort to arrange peace between Italy and Ethiopia but any settlement must be within the framework of the league.

The boycott will be clamped down one minute after midnight, November 18, beginning the most drastic peace time penalty ever voted by world nations against a nation at war.

Prompt Action

The approval of the date by the full committee was expected following a favorable vote by the "general staff" committee of 11 earlier today. The full committee acted promptly after two days of hesitation and took one of the most decisive steps in the league's history.

The full committee approved the resolutions submitted by the "general staff" in order. First approved was the resolution fixing the date for the beginning of the boycott and the embargo on key products.

The committee then approved the second resolution asking all league members to apply financial sanctions against Italy by November 18 at the latest. The resolution points out that 39 members already have applied or are about to apply these measures which would deprive Italy of all foreign loans, credits and commercial advances.

Hoare Speaks

Sir Samuel Hoare in his discussion of peace efforts, said:

"It's common talk that in the last few days there have been conversations at Rome, Paris and London on possibility of speedy and honorable settlement of the present controversy. The conversations have been nothing more than an exchange of tentative suggestions."

Sir Samuel emphasized that any settlement must be through the league and continued:

"There is nothing further from our minds than to conclude an agreement behind the back of the league or make an agreement not acceptable to all three parties."

He spoke Premier Laval said France would apply sanctions loyally but added that the league must continue to seek a friendly settlement of the dispute. Laval declared "a special duty devolves upon France which signed the treaty of friendship with Italy on January 7."

YACHT IS ON ROCKS

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 2.—(UP)—Coast guardsmen awaited high-tide today to refloat the Albatross, 51-foot pleasure boat owned by C. W. Baker, Los Angeles, which went aground on rocks near La Jolla last night.

Baker and four members of his party were taken ashore safely by the crew of the Perseus, coast guard cutter under command of Lieutenant-Commander John Byrd.

ETHIOPIAN WARRIORS HARASS ITALIAN FORCES ON DESERT

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Bands of half naked Ethiopian warriors, armed with rifle and spear, are harassing Italian forces at the edge of the Danakil desert on the eastern front and inflicting serious losses, messages to the capital said today.

So severely have the attacks with bomb and machine guns been felt, the messages said, that infantry and airplane retaliation is being attempted daily.

The warriors are nomads operating in the Mt. Mussa Ali sector near French Somaliland. They charge on Italian detachments just before dawn, particularly in the Amind district which contains swamps and barrens.

Each night, the messages said, between 3 a. m. and 5 a. m. the warriors make their raids, loot the camps and disappear in the desert to hide throughout the day while airplanes cruise overhead

Some point to the north, indicating that some Italian force there is being supplied partly by air.

Ten thousand troops from the Gore country arrived today, led by the Dedjazmach Makonnen, son of a great leader and former minister. They paraded before the emperor with the usual prancing and boasting. They were unusually well equipped because Gore is one of the richest provinces.

CHINA CLIPPER SYER RETIRES STARTS OFF ON AS JUDGE IN 25-HOUR TRIP LAMSON CASE

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 2.—(UP)—

The China clipper, giant airliner, soared off over the Atlantic ocean today on a trip to test its flying range.

Capt. Edwin C. Musick lifted the 25-ton transport plane into a cloudless sky at 8:55 a. m. and turned the ship toward San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The flight was designed to follow as closely as possible conditions the new Pan-American Airways ship will encounter when it begins regular passenger, airmail and express hauls between California and China.

The clipper was expected to fly non-stop for 25 hours or more, returning tomorrow. Fueled by 4000 gallons of gasoline in its hull and wing tanks, the airliner was prepared to fly 4000 miles without a stop.

The scheduled hop will cover between 3000 and 3500 miles by air, a test sturdier than the longest over-water jump the clipper ship will have on its trans-Pacific crossing—2410 miles between California and Hawaii.

The route: To fly in an arc to San Juan and return to Miami, then to Key West, possibly to Nassau and back to Key West, and finally from Key West to land at Miami. No landings were scheduled.

Musick was in command on the crew of flight.

In addition to being a test of the ship's flying range, the flight also was a training ship for crew members who later will handle sister ships of the huge four-motored Martin planes which are to be delivered to the airways company for the Pacific service.

PURVIS OFFERED POST

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Melvin Purvis, erstwhile Chicago department of justice agent who directed the "rubbing out" of John Dillinger and other gangsters, has been offered the job of protecting Hollywood's fair citizens.

Jack La Rue, actor, revealed today that Purvis was being sought to head the Motion Picture Protective league, an organization designed to protect stars from blackmailers and "badger game" racketeers.

"While the police and the district attorney's office always have done a good job of protecting us," said La Rue, "we feel that Purvis probably could nip most plots before they developed."

LATE FLASHES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—(UP)—James J. Braddock, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, will appear in an exhibition at Dreamland auditorium here Nov. 15, Benny Ford, in charge of the champion's national exhibition tour, said today.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(UP)—The state senate and assembly liquor committees at a meeting here today advocated fingerprinting of liquor license applicants, reduction of the number of permits and increase in fees.

MRS STEEGER OUT ON BAIL LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Mrs. Clara Steeger was at liberty today after $1000 bail today, pending trial December 11 with her husband, Fred, and Mrs. Hazel Belford Glab on charge of forgery and manufacturing false evidence in connection with Mrs. Glab's vain fight to gain the $400,000 estate of Albert L. Cheney.

Mrs. Steeger, who surrendered yesterday, was discharged from the county jail on bail several hours after entering pleas of guilty to both charges.

Mrs. Glab is still in jail in default of $10,000 bail. Steeger is awaiting extradition from Philadelphia.

Spurgeon also announced today that the board of directors of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce will meet Monday morning and that undoubtedly the water situation will be reviewed at the meeting. A special chamber of commerce committee had recommended a modified plan, and action on the recommendation was delayed last week by the chamber of commerce pending the outcome of yesterday's meeting of the Citizens' Water committee.

Deputies Reveal Troubles Getting Custody of Men

A letter received from Herman Zabel, deputy sheriff who with Theo, Lacy Jr., is in Tampa, Fla., endeavoring to return prisoners to Santa Ana, today explained the difficulties the officers were having.

Politics in Florida, together with the fact that officers there resented the fact that a California governor at one time refused to agree to the extradition of a prisoner wanted there a number of years ago, were two reasons advanced by Zabel as to why he was unable to get custody of the two men he wanted.

No direct word was heard from the officers today and it is likely, according to Sheriff Jackson that they are on their way back to California by this time with the prisoners.

A Collegiate Digest, weekly rotogravure section, is also published by the paper, using the latest in college pictures each week.

Massed Machine Guns Mustered in Drive on Makale

The concentration of machine guns moving against the Ethiopians in the drive toward Makale is made apparent in this picture from Ray Rousseau, NEA Service staff cameraman with the Italian army in Eritrea. Rushed to London by courier and radioed to America, it shows an Italian machine gun battalion, its cylinders of death conspicuously slung over shoulders, advancing to its new positions south of Aksum and Addis.

LET PROF. ROGERSTEACH YOU AND BE LIFE OF ANY PARTY

BY WILL ROGERS

Well all I know is just what I read in books.

Old Henry the Eighth was just an old fat big-footed chuckle-head. Baby. He had an older brother named Arthur. Oldest brothers got everything in those days, a younger brother was just a Democrat.

He had to take what was left. This Arthur wasn't well and he didn't know much even when he felt good. England wasn't much of a country. It stood just about like the Braves in the American League.

They wanted to marry this Prince Arthur off to somebody with a pedigree. They looked in the Stud book and found there had been a filly colt sired in Spain a few years ahead of Arthur, but whose mating might add to the prestige of a fast shipping operation, so they got ahold of Queen Isabella of Spain. She was the Mabel Willerbrandt of that administration. There was a King along with her, I think it was Ferdinand. But they kept him sitting on the bench season after season.

This Isabella is the one that a Dago from Italy come up and got her to back the first non-stop flight of the Atlantic. He went in for safety, he wanted a three-motored job, he wouldn't take a chance on one ship going dead on him, so he made her fix him up with three. He missed the whole of the American Continent, but found San Domingo. The next man to find it five hundred years later was Charley Dawes and a Commission of financial experts.

Well this Isabella not only had jewels to pawn to back these cross-country tours, but she had children to distribute around where they would bring in the most revenue. She had landed one in France as a King's wife, and one in Rome (whoever had it that day). When Nations in those days had nothing else to do they would take Rome, then sit and pray for somebody to come and take it off their hands.

Well they had a Daughter Catherine, so about the best they could do with her was an offer from England. That was kinder like slumming for it didn't mean much to Spain, who was the General Motors of those days. But they sent her over and married her to Arthur, who was I think about fourteen years old. They wanted to get him settled down before he had a chance to start running around too much. Well Arthur was disgusted with the whole proceeding, and to get even with all of them, he just died.

Well that brought this old round fat-headed boy into the proceedings. For a second Son in England.

Ken Maynard to Battle Rustlers On State Screen

Ken Maynard comes to the screen of Walker's State theater next Friday and Saturday in a stirring tale of war against cattle thieves.

Maynard is cast as a secret government agent on the trail of rustlers and his sister who was stolen by the Indians when she was a small child. His exploits in the pursuit of his double objective make interesting and entertaining film fare, according to Manager Vic Walker.

ORANGE PERSONALS

ORANGE, Nov. 2.—The Bertha Epley guild of the First Christian church will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. instead of Monday night in order to avoid conflict with the leadership training school being held Monday at the First Methodist church. The pastor, the Rev. Franklin H. Minck, will tell of a recent visit to the Mexican Christian institute at San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Green have returned from a visit with relatives in Iowa and Missouri. While in the middle west the former attended the Townsend convention in Chicago and Mrs. Green remained with relatives in Des Moines.

Mrs. Jennie Cook, East Maple avenue, is to leave soon over the Santa Fe for Homer, Mich., where she will remain until after the holidays with her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Crane.

land only has one chance in the world, and that's for the older one to die. So that was Henry's first good break early in life. He not only inherited the direct line but he took over all Prince Arthur's estate, including wife.

In order for Henry not to marry a widow, why they dug up a guy named Woolsey. He was a lobbyist to Rome and the Pope, and anything like old Marriage ceremonies, or dates or deeds, why he could arrange and change them to fit the times, so he thought of the bright idea of saying that Prince Arthur and Catherine were never married, that it was two other fellows.

So Henry took her over. I think he was about twelve. He had to start marrying early for he had a lot of marrying to do. About all you could say for him was that he was big. If he had lived in these days he would have been a wrestler, or a Doorman outside some New York hotel.

Catherine couldn't speak English and he couldn't speak Spanish so there was no chance of an argument.

His father whoever it was, I forget his number (you know they have numbers on those Kings like they do on race horses), well I forgot whether it was a George the 7th, or Edward the 11th. Well anyhow he died, and left young King Henry a disease in one leg and Cardinal Woolsey, that's the only two things he killed him.

Well Catherine seemed to have been all right as a wife for a Prince of Wales. But for a King, well she just wasn't the type. No male heir had been born, and of course everybody was to blame but Henry. To have a girl baby in those days was not only a total loss but practically a social disaster.

It wasn't that Boys were any more comfort to you, but if there was no heir to follow you up the graft might slip out of your family's hands and into some other. It was the days of high ideals and square dealing.

Well lookout, now the story is getting hot. Ann Boole was a local vamp, and she used to follow up and read how Ann took Henry. She made all the fat go to his head.

History in miniature, — you don't have to read. Let me do your learning for you. Fifteen minutes every Sunday with Professor Rogers, and you will be able to be the life of the Party at any Rotary, Kiwanis, or Lions luncheon.

COUNTY MUSIC SUPERVISOR TALKS AT CLUB

Well attended by musicians of the city, yesterday's luncheon of Musical Arts club in James' gold room offered an interesting speaker in the person of Mrs. Mabel Spizzy, music supervisor in Orange county schools.

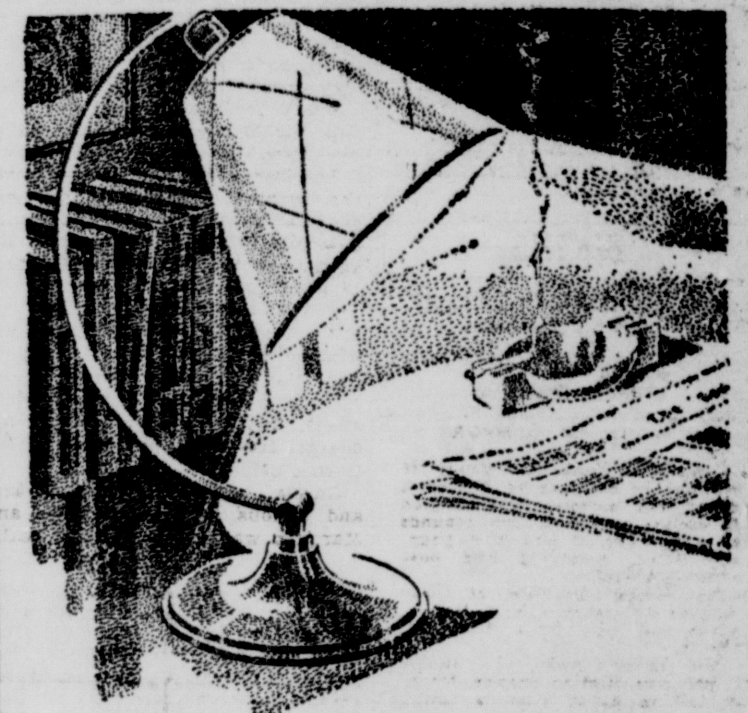

Deriving her subject directly from her own work, Mrs. Spizzy talked on "Music in County Schools," demonstrating teaching methods and their results by the use of phonograph records. "Small children must listen to learn in order to learn to listen," was her whimsical manner of stressing the importance of beginning musical training at an early age.

She called attention to the manner in which schools have sought to prepare students for wage earning at the expense of the equally necessary cultural pursuits, and declared that modern schools are recognizing the value of incorporating music in their curricula. Of the various composers she cited Brahms as being especially valuable in teaching duties, declaring the small pupils respond quickly to his rhythms.

Miss Mary Howard, Y. W. C. A. secretary was among guests present, and announced the series of Sunday afternoon concerts to be given in the Y. W. clubrooms throughout the winter. An informal song program followed with Miss Ruth Armstrong as accompanist and Miss Beulah Parker as leader.

Death Notices

A WORD OF COMFORT

Unless it gives you power to triumph in the face of difficulty, doubt and sorrow, your religion is useless. Look to the grounds of your faith. If you find your faith weak, trembling and possibly resentful.

An honest analysis of your religion will reveal that it is adequate but you have failed to use it.

God cannot make you strong if you give Him no chance. Merely talking about Him is futile. Trust His love and seek to live as He directs and you will develop a triumphant courage.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION ACCEPTS HULL'S REQUEST TO CAMPAIGN AGAINST WARFARE

Praising the national government's peace stand, the Santa Ana Ministerial Association today forwarded to Secretary of State Cordell Hull its acceptance of Hull's bid to support the movement against war.

A statement prepared by the Ministerial Union's committee, Dr. George A. Warner, pastor of the First M. E. church, and the Rev. John T. Stivers, pastor of the Orange Avenue Christian church, was dispatched to the secretary of state, commending his own attitude and that of President Franklin D. Roosevelt as "heartening" to Christians.

The statement said: "We, the ministers of the Ministerial Association of Santa Ana, California, desire to express to you our enthusiastic response to your invitation to make the church a flaming crusade against war and an ardent advocate of peace."

"Such an attitude at the heart of the Department of State of our great country, in a time like this when the whole world is at the mercy of an incident, greatly heartens the followers of the Prince of Peace."

"The recent address of the President of the United States delivered at San Diego, and broadcast throughout the land, gives wings to our imagination as we work for the day when swords shall be beaten into plough shares and spears into pruning hooks. Today's press carries added encouragement emanating from the White House. After two thousand years of Christian teaching it is not too early to expect the accomplishment of the annihilation of war."

"As early Christianity out-thought and out-lived and thereby remade ancient civilizations, so present day Christianity must incarnate in the molds of our life the inherent value of the individual in the sight of God."

"We pledge to you our support and request that you command us, if in any way we can help, to make war forever a thing of the past."

"We could recount in detail the organization of the League of Nations, the establishment of the World court, the signing of the Pact of Paris, and many similar treaties. Of all this you are cognizant. Christendom has been united behind the drive of which these are varying expressions. We do not accept any one of them as the only adequate means to be used. We urge the use of every legitimate means toward the desired end of driving military conflict, as a means of settling international disputes, for ever from our world and thereby promoting the gospel of the common good."

"Neutrality" was the subject for study and discussion at yesterday's meeting of the Santa Ana League of Women Voters, under the direction of Mrs. D. D. Field, at the Y.M.C.A.

Mrs. Field in her talk quoted from a paper of Mrs. Malbone W. Graham and other authorities on the topic. Considerable discussion centered on the views held by Senator Gerald P. Nye and Admiral Simms.

A report was made on the recent inspection trip to the Orange county sewage reclamation moriel plant, and the explanations of the plant as given by Engineer Harry N. Jenks.

Plans were made for a benefit program and tea to be held November 22 by the league. It was announced that outstanding artists of the community, would be asked to participate.

Church Group to Hold Memorial

A special memorial service for Miss Ruth Goode, one of their number who died last Wednesday, will be held by the young people of the Santa Ana Foursquare church Sunday morning at 10:15 o'clock at the close of the Sunday school class. Miss Goode was one of the most popular of the young people of Orange county and her funeral Friday afternoon was said to have been one of the largest attended in the memory of local citizens.

At the evening service Mrs. Archer will present another of her interesting and touching illustrated sermons, entitled "Who's Who in Heaven and Hell." These illustrated sermons are attracting unusual interest and much favorable comment.

been arranged by Miss Edwards to be of utmost practical value to housewives attending. Although there will be a number of fancy party dishes given, the majority of suggestions will be for inexpensive useful meals which will simplify the recurrent task of planning daily meals.

Homemaking in this modern era is a fascinating career, made especially so by the efficient home appliances which have ended the necessity for drudgery and its consequent limitations. Today's home woman acquires work-saving equipment as rapidly as the family budget permits, and in the majority of cases the equipment she chooses is electric."

"Electrical service, beneficial throughout the entire home, is especially adaptable to the kitchen. The wife spends most of her working hours there, and it is her right to have the best tools with which to do her work. A kitchen having an electric range and other electrical conveniences is easy to keep clean, beautiful, and a place which any housewife is proud to show her friends. An all-electric kitchen simplifies and speeds meal preparation, facilitates service and makes the home in general a happier place to live."

SECLUSION
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 2.—There seem to be two reasons why President Roosevelt slips off every few months to his Hyde Park hideaway.

The official one is always the old rest-and-relaxation excuse. Mr. Roosevelt likes to be among the birds and the trees. It gets him away from the bull weevils who always are pestering a president.

The other unadmitted reason why he ducks out of the Washington spotlight occasionally is to confer with a few guests whose names he does not care to have advertised around the world.

This time, on his fourth trip of the year, he is supposed to be running in a considerable number of Democratic primaries from New York and nearby eastern states whose names will probably never reach the public prints.

CHECK-UP
The Hyde Park ground moles say most of the invitations were issued by the President's mother and that the significance is more social than political. However, the moles may not know about all the local elections being held next Tuesday in New York, Pennsylvania and other states, which will be anything but social.

It is more than a feathered guess that the President is getting a line on what to expect, and what to do, if anything.

LEAK

No less a public figure than Father Coughlin got in and out of Hyde Park a few weeks back without anyone knowing about it. In fact, no one would know it yet if Father Coughlin did not have such a strong radio voice that he does not always require a microphone for broadcasting.

The tip that he had been here came from the general direction of Detroit about 24 hours after he left. Newsmen here asked a presidential spokesman about it. The spokesman denied it. Next day, at a press conference, the President himself confirmed it, saying it was only a social visit, and that he had been saving the news.

PROTECTION

There are three ways to get in and out of the presidential estate. It is impossible for anyone to watch all three or any one efficient by and state police have special parking rules for anyone who comes too close. Newsmen are not allowed on the grounds. They stay at the executive offices in a hotel at Poughkeepsie, six miles away, making frequent trips out to catch those guests whom they are permitted to find out about.

This gives the President a natural privacy, impenetrable unless the guests talk. But do not be misled into the assumption that he has no privacy whatever at the White House. Last summer, Prof. Felix Frankfurter was an unannounced White House guest for weeks. Prof. Raymond Moley is always running in and out without being seen. Moley worked for weeks helping in the preparation of those speeches made by Mr. Roosevelt on his western trip.

Vincent Astor usually drops in at Hyde Park, but they say Bernard Baruch does not come around any more, since the tax bill passed.

HOME FOLKS

When President Roosevelt first returned to Hyde Park village as President of the United States, a throng of about 20 persons gathered at the station to greet him. The other day, the welcoming crowd consisted of the station master, two railroad employees and a telegraph boy.

On the previous trip, a new newsman observed the absence of cheering crowds and wrote a big story about it for his New York newspaper.

He suggested indelicately that this is a staunch Republican community and it is. It gave Congressman Ham Fish to the world. The President did not carry his local precinct in the presidential election.

The story caused a local uproar. The local paper emblazoned a denunciation of it on the front page with headlines two feet long. As the paper saw it, the townspeople knew that Mr. Roosevelt did not want them to annoy him with demonstrations, so they usually turned over and went back to sleep after his early morning arrivals. An apology was demanded from the writer, but he returned to New York where no one ever apologizes for anything.

FLAG

Equally disturbing to the inner decorum of the presidential retinue was a charge made by another writer that the Poughkeepsie post office did not have an American flag up to celebrate another of the President's arrivals.

Whatever may be said against the community at large, the postmaster is a Democrat. Such an accusation made his good New Deal blood surge. Heavy local publicity was stirred about this incident also.

It was adjusted finally when the postmaster took the writer out and showed him the flag. It seems that it hangs behind a cupola and is not visible from the sidewalk.

CHUMS

There is a legend in the community that the Republican ex-secretary of the treasury, Ogden Mills, never got along with President Roosevelt as a boy. The Mills estate is a few miles down the road. The two boys are supposed to have tossed a few large sized pebbles at each other whenever the opportunity offered. The only difference now is that they use political brickbats.

WASHINGTON

By Ray Tucker

WISDOM

Confidential aides are making a careful check of the curves in President Roosevelt's day to day popularity. Their current conclusion is that the boss' gains strength when he and Congress stop talking and acting.

Mr. Roosevelt's recent cruise proved for him the truth of the old song that "absence makes the heart grow fonder." While he was out of the country his stock rose 3 per cent according to one poll. Industry and business improved. Though it isn't generally known, the President deliberately kept off the front page. On his 5,000-mile cruise he saw the three press association reporters only half a dozen times, and simply inquired after their health. He gave out no big news—only fish stories.

Mr. Roosevelt has taken the lesson to heart. He will be absent from Washington intermittently—and from the front page—until December 1. He has ordered his aides and cabinet members to stop talking. He's beginning to think that his announcement of a "breathing spell" was a grand idea.

REPRISALS

Although planned as a simple "homecoming" President Roosevelt's appearance in Atlanta late in November will be a large-scale political maneuver. Its purpose is to crush incipient rebellion in the South headed by red-suspended Governor Talmadge of the President's adopted state.

Long, only possible successor, has traveled the country as an anti-New Deal orator. Confidentially he tells people that the state is behind him in his attack on the President. He could be a potential trouble-maker. Now that Huey Long is dead the Georgian presents the only threat within the party. All these considerations motivated the political sponsors of Mr. Roosevelt's appearance at Atlanta.

The state's Congressional delegation, including the anti-New Deal Senators George and Russell, were dragged into inviting the President. It is estimated that 200,000 people will be on hand to hear him in the Georgia Tech stadium. The promoters will see to it that if this outpouring doesn't scare off Governor Talmadge it will be because he doesn't know Georgia politics.

SCARED

Silas H. Strawn's first report on his money-collecting activities for the GOP's presidential campaign was disappointing. The chairman of the Republican finance committee stole into Washington a few days ago to bring the bad news to Chairman Henry Fletcher.

Mr. Strawn reported that the woods were full of people who would be only too glad to contribute large sums to defeat President Roosevelt. He listed the bankers, the utilities, the manufacturers and small business men as possible contributors. Almost every interest antagonized or hurt by the New Deal, he said, was ready to make up the $5,000,000 campaign fund which Mr. Fletcher privately expects to mobilize between now and November, 1936.

CUTTING

Almost without notice President Roosevelt has achieved a little advertised objective of the New Deal—lower rates for borrowed money.

Prospective PWA borrowers are refusing to accept federal loans because they can get private money for 4 per cent. Morris Cooke of REA has lost several customers because they preferred to finance rural electrification lines on private money borrowed at 4 per cent instead of with his 3 per cent, 30-year advance. Federal agencies' competition has driven interest on farm mortgages down to 4 and 4½ per cent in some sections of the country. FHA has helped in cutting interest on first trusts from 6 to 5 and 5½ per cent. RFC-er Jesse Jones offers large and long-term loans to industry at 5½ per cent.

Bankers contend that capital will not come out of hiding under these circumstances. But New Dealers argue that private capital must accommodate itself to a 4 per cent instead of a 6 per cent level if it expects to make any profit. Though few pay much attention to this development it is one of the muted but major New Deal reforms.

SIDETRACKED

Administrators have written Hugh Johnson's name in the blackest of black books. They are telling tales behind their hands which brand the erstwhile NRA chieftain and current critic as a "sorehead."

Despite the doctored general public statements that he had to return to private life to earn a decent living, they say he has persistently tried to attach himself to a federal job. First he wanted the post as counsel in the A. T. & T. investigation. Then he was willing to serve as the czar of the bituminous coal industry. He could be tempted by an offer to serve as head lawyer for the Congressional committee investigating the pooling of patents. He wanted to stay on as WPA director in New York City while he filled his speaking engagements, using the position as a publicity backdrop. But in each instance he was gently nudged out of the race, though the nudging was done quietly by certain influential hands.

SAFE

Insiders do not expect any abatement in the flow of European capital to this country even if the Anglo-Italian crisis is amicably settled soon. Europe will still be thinking in terms of war in a year or two—when Germany is ready—and her wealthy citizens will probably continue to ship their treasure to Uncle Sam for safekeeping and profit.

LEAVEN

Financial New York is no fonder of Franklin Roosevelt than it was six months ago despite his recent rightist gestures. It would still give its eye teeth to beat him.

Yet it's surprising how often, even at meeting of conservative capitalists or industrialists, someone will raise the point how much better off those present are than they were in March of '33. You hear the viewpoint expressed quite frequently that perhaps it's preferable to pay a "confiscatory" tax on income than to have the income to be taxed. This attitude is bound to leave the last-ditch opposition next year.

GADFLY

Wall Streeters get a kick out of Hugh Johnson's acid criticisms of the New Deal and New Dealers. Comment runs that the doctored General must have decided to appoint himself the President's gadfly-in-chief. A gadfly's bite isn't fatal—but it sure can be exasperating.

SIDELIGHTS

Chemical companies will spend $50,000,000 on modernization and expansion in the next few months. Italy will run out of gold in about a year at her present spending pace. Unless British credit is restored, New York night club proprietors agree that happy days are here again.

Contract Bridge

By Hazel Parr Thronson
(Certified Culbertson Teacher)

The "Principal of Preparedness" means the anticipation of partner's possible response to your opening bid.

Because 99 per cent of all opening bids are "one bids," it is necessary to first think what you partner might respond before you make your opening bid. If the strength in the opening hand is minimum, be careful to keep the bidding low. This is especially true when holding two biddable suits. Of course, if your suit is fairly strong and rebiddable it is easy enough to rebid your suit when your next turn comes. "The Principal of Preparedness" really applies more to hands with more than one biddable suit.

For instance you hold spade A Q x x, hearts 8 7 6, diamonds A Q 10 x x and clubs 8 7 6. The proper opening bid is one diamond. Thus if your partner bids one heart, you are able to bid one spade—and if he should bid two clubs, you can rebid your diamonds. But if your original bid was one spade, on this somewhat weak hand, your partner may respond with two hearts—you are now on a "spot" because by bidding three diamonds you may be fast arriving at an impossible contract, and on the other hand if you do not bid three diamonds you may be passing a possible game. Mr. Culbertson states: "With a four-card and a five-card suit of which the shorter is the higher ranking, and with a hand containing less than four honor tricks, bid the higher ranking four-card suit first where the suits are of touching rank, (spades and hearts, hearts and diamonds or diamonds and clubs). Where the suits are not adjacent, bid the longer, lower ranking suit first."

When the opening bidder has to choose between two four-card suits, the reasoning is practically the same. He must visualize the possible response by partner and with about 3½ honor-tricks of minimum honor strength he should strive to keep the bidding at the level of one or two until he has an idea of the general strength within the partnership.

REVEAL HOW VAUGHAN NEARLY BECAME NEW YORK YANKEE

The amazing story of Floyd Vaughan, major league baseball player, is unfolded in interesting detail and unerring accuracy in the last Sporting News, national baseball publication.

It discloses a number of interesting things about the famed shortstop, but this, to me, was new: Vaughan became a New York Yankee because a Yankee scout, Bill Essick, could not find a place at the same time. Essick went to Long Beach to investigate the possibilities of another Fullerton player, Willard Lerschberger instead of to Cypress to look over Vaughan. When he got around to seeing Vaughan, "Arky" already had signed with Pittsburgh subsidiary.

Here are some highlights from the Sporting News story, written by Ed Ballinger of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette:

"In the winter of 1930, as Christmas was approaching, Art Griggs, then president and manager of the Wichita club in the Western league, was devoting much of his spare time to plans for the approaching season. He learned to build up the strength of his team, which was then owned by the Pittsburgh club, and he had hopes of developing some young talent which might eventually ripen into big league timber. So he decided to hang up his stockings and see if he could not help Santa Claus to slip into it a prize package.

"Griggs can tell a ball player the moment he sees one and he attended game after game on the sand lots around Los Angeles and adjacent territory where the national pastime is pursued throughout the winter months. He wanted to find youthful pitchers, likewise a catcher and also an outfielder. Bill Essick, famous scout of the New York Yankees, who was in the same neighborhood, was on a similar mission. He was on the trail of a backstop and also had his powers wide open for some promising kid who had the earmarks of a future shortstop.

"Essick had heard of a mere boy who was performing in highly approved fashion at various infield positions and occasionally joining his bit in the outer garden for the Cypress team, a crack outfit near the town of Fullerton. At the same time, the New York scout was aware that another sturdy lad was doing exceptionally fine work in Long Beach. Both towns are situated within easy driving distance of

Next Friday's Games
San Juan Capistrano at Tustin; Laguna Beach at Valencia; Brea-Olinda at Garden Grove; Huntington Beach at Anaheim; Orange at Newport Harbor.

Barring a dramatic upset in the next two weeks, Brea-Olinda and Anaheim will clash November 22 for the football championship of the Orange County prep league.

They were the only undefeated teams that remained today of the "Little Big Ten" that started the conference program only three weeks ago.

In important games yesterday, Brea-Olinda virtually clinched at least a tie for first place by defeating Valencia (Placentia) at Brea, 13-0, while the powerful defending champion, Anaheim, was slaughtering sacrificial Tustin, 39-0.

Brea-Olinda still plays Garden Grove and Laguna Beach, should beat both. Anaheim meets Huntington Beach and Orange, major teams, but not likely to thwart Coach Dick Glover's troupe.

Valencia, adequate defensively, slipped on two occasions in losing to Brea. After an even game for a quarter and a half, Paul Ledbetter scored for the Wildcats on a 62-yard run. Leroy Laing added the extra point on a plunge. And in the third quarter, Tommy Anderson worked the "stolen ball" play to score a second "Cat" touchdown. Valencia had the ball and Cliff Hargrove started through Anaheim's side of the line. Suddenly Anderson came out of the scrimmage with the ball tucked under his arm, and he ran 34 yards to a touchdown.

Remaining a mathematical contender for the championship, Orange moved down to Grove's scrappy squad, 13-7, by virtue of two rapid-fire touchdowns in the first eight minutes of play at Orange.

Timken intercepted an Argonaut pass and ran it back 10 yards to Garden Grove's 35-yard line. Orange tallied in five plays, Elmer Smith going over from the 3-yard mark. Rice kicked goal.

Garden Grove kicked off and Orange's two first downs brought the ball to Orange's 45. Then Smith passed to Timken who ran 30 yards after the catch for a touchdown.

Garden Grove got its score early in the fourth period after blocking a punt. Otsuka recovering on Orange's 15, Orange held for downs and took the ball but Timken fumbled and Monell got it for the Argonauts. Lehnhardt bucked it over and added the extra point.

Huntington Beach chalked up its second Orange league victory by swamping Laguna Beach under a 31-to-6 score. The Oilers tallied first in the second period on a pass from Meyers to Talbert, twice in the third period on line plunges by Jenkins and Hazelton, and broke Meyers loose twice in the fourth quarter for touchdowns—one a 20-yard run and the other a 45-yard spin. Fullback "Dink" Reimer made Laguna's only touchdown on a 12-yard smash through the line in the second period.

San Juan Capistrano's surprising Cougars, showing great improvement, held Newport Harbor to a 7-6 score. Both squads scored in the third quarter. Avila went over for Capistrano but missed the try for extra point. Al Pearce scored a few minutes later for the Sailors and Foster kicked goal for the extra point that gave his team victory.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Gene Coughlin, sports editor of the Los Angeles Post-Record, informed us that Los Angeles finally has grown up insofar as football is concerned, with special emphasis on University of Southern California teams.

Coughlin promises that henceforth Angelenos are going to act as though they have a city out there, not a hamlet. He says that Los Angeles is going to be like Chicago and New York and San Francisco, where every club has a right to its supporters and the game comes first.

Coughlin points out that football has been one of the west coast movie, oil, citrus and walnut belt's leading industries, and that the neglected squads—those of U. C. L. A. and Loyola—reached front rank distinction on their own while the natives were calling out bands and staging civic parades for U. S. C. arrays—when they won.

But I fear that Coughlin is wrong when he insists that Los Angeles has discarded the idea that U. S. C. has to win or that its followers will know the reason why and take drastic steps. And that it is going to give U. C. L. A. the same consideration during its reign, and treat Loyola likewise.

U. S. C. only has to stage a comeback or U. C. L. A. or Loyola launch and sustain a high-scoring streak, such as that enjoyed by the Trojans from 1928 to 1932, to bring about a fresh besting of the Los Angeles tom-toms. U. C. L. A. only has to remain in high gear to win over the professional alumni that has been following the men of Howard Jones.

N. Y. WENT JOE COLLEGE
Football is like that—always has been since it became widely spread, and Los Angeles is like any other center, be it situated in Maine, Kansas, or New Mexico. Don't believe that San Franciscoans relished the shellackings S. C. used to deal California and Stanford.

Rooters of Chicago and New York are divided, but each group is intensely partisan. Marquette acted like Tusculum with the mayor out and all, when the courageous little corps of Columbia athletes returned from their victory over Stanford in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, Jan. 1, 1934.

I spent the other week-end at

COLLEGE PRESS AGENTS AMUCK

Warner's Ballyhoo For Dave Smukler Proves Harmful

TARHEELS WIRE BUNK COLLECT

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—"The ballyhoo days have come," "The tripe of the year," "When slush and mush and sliced baloney," "Beat against the ear."

William Cullen Bryant didn't word it quite that way, but he probably would have had to live in this day and been a sportswriter, and been assaulted by the slush and mush and sliced baloney of the college football press agents.

For folks, those press agents really turn on the heat as the season heads into the November home stretch.

Sit quietly on an evening these days and you can almost hear the groan of the mimeographs as the press agents shove in the superlatives. With the finish line in sight no halfback is too slow or clumsy to be a "daring light of flame" who can run like a deer, buck like a tank, kick 35 yards in his bare feet, and thread a needle at 50 yards with passes, and no lineman too fat and oafish to come whirling out of the mimeograph as "a tall, rangy, diabolical, all-whalebone and whipsnoodle, as a terror on offense, and a holy terror, doubled in spades, on defense."

My guess is that this sort of eye-wash does more harm than good. A little of it might work all right, but too much makes a fellow skeptical, and much too much brings on a fine case of upset stomach.

"I can think of several instances where too much ballyhoo cost a player a chance to make All-America. Take "Pop" Warner and his crack fullback, Dave Smukler for example. Pop took one squint at Dave and began sounding off that he was twice as good as Thorpe and Nevers at their best. He built up such a picture of an unstoppable juggernaut that when the experts went down to see him and he actually fell to the ground when tackled by three opponents, they went away muttering "heh, heh, heh, heh, heh."

Then there was the celebrated case of "Tuffy" Leemans of George Washington last year. Tuffy, a whale of a player, had his All-America hopes spiked when an overzealous genius of the blur prepared a Ringling Brothers poster (in colors) of him, and mailed it to every sports desk this side of Jerusalem. One look at it, and you were ragged. One of these days your correspondent is going to sit down

NEUSEL OUTS UNDERCARNER PUNISHMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Primo Camera cast a dubious shadow today over the heavyweight contenders.

Shorn of his title in 1934 and whipped soundly last June by Joe Louis, the huge Italian began a comeback last night in Madison Square Garden by winning a four-round technical knockout victory over Walter Neusel, erstwhile German "Tiger."

With that triumph, he took a favorable step on the route which he hopes will lead to another chance at the championship.

Last night was Primo's first appearance since he was knocked out by Louis. He battered the German for the first three rounds and then gashed Neusel's right brow so badly in the fourth round that the Teuton quit cold, with blood spurting from the cut.

The finish came after 2 minutes and 23 seconds of the fourth round. Neusel, who had lost only three previous fights in 63 starts, threw up his hands and waved away the Ambling Alp. He turned and started to his corner even before Referee Arthur Donovan halted the battle.

LAST HALF AIR RAID WINS FOR WHITTIER

WHITTIER, Nov. 2.—(UP)—A second-half air raid enabled the Whittier College Poets to overhaul San Jose State and win, 12 to 6, in their football game here last night.

Dud De Groot's battlers set the Poets back by their haunches throughout the first half with a blistering attack which brought a touchdown in the second period as Jim Stockdale took a lateral pass from Lewis and trotted 40 yards to the pay-off stripe.

Elvin Hutchinson and Dan Tubbs pulled the fat out of the fire for Whittier. In the third period Hutchinson whipped a flat pass over center and Tubbs gathered it in to score.

Hutchinson pitched to Tubbs from the 30-yard line in the last period for the winning tally. Neither team succeeded in converting a point after a touchdown.

RELANDS' PASSES TROUNCE LA VERNE

REDLANDS, Nov. 2.—(UP)—Hustling gridmen of Redlands university scored three touchdowns to defeat La Verne, 20 to 0, in a football game here last night.

After a scoreless first period Blaisdell nipped a pass from Peterson and rammed 20 yards to score, Nicholson converting.

A few minutes later Riley took the ball to La Verne's two yard line on a pass from Blaisdell, and Johnson nudged it over, Nicholson booting a second extra point.

The final counter rang up in the third period with Johnson clipping through the line after a sustained march, but the try for conversion failed.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 2.—(UP)—The man who handles Stanford university's purse strings, Almon E. Roth, comptroller, today smashed hopes of star athletes that they might escape the university's $115 quarterly tuition charges.

The administration anticipates no such action, Roth declared. "Tiny" Thornhill, football coach, said he had not heard of a reported plan whereby athletes recommended by the physical education department as deserving would be allowed to attend Stanford free of charge.

The youth, injured in a football game between Springfield high school and University high school of Eugene, Oct. 18, was taken to hospital Tuesday after complaining of head pains. He died yesterday.

'Sweet Work, Esther'—Then Rivals Fainted

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn., Nov. 2.—(UP)—The lines of the Middlefield Air Cadets and Friendly Indians football teams collided with a thud and arms and legs dangled from a pyramid of young cadets.

When the heap was unscrambled, the cadets' quarterback gave his center a friendly pat on the back.

"Sweet work, Esther," he said.

"My gosh," yelled a dumbfounded opponent, "it's a girl."

And that was the first time the Indians knew the hard-tackling center of the cadets, who had been breaking up most of their plays was Esther Burnham, 14-year-old high school student daughter of a local store owner.

In football togs, Esther looks like any other player. Her bobbed brunette hair is tucked under a helmet and her shapeliness smothered with pads.

This is her first year on an organized sand-lot team. She is a proficient swimmer and tennis and baseball player and turned to football "for excitement."

ANAHEIM ROLLS UP 39-0 SCORE OVER FARMERS

Scoring at least once in every quarter, Anaheim high school pennant-bound football machine ran wild through a game, but helpless Tustin varsity, to amass 39 digits, while the home-team Tillers failed to register a single point yesterday.

Power and aggressiveness spelled victory in capital letters for the Colonists, whose line outweighed Tustin's nearly 20 pounds per man. While a great deal of credit must be given to Wally Fee, all-county backfield ace, and Harry Tanaka, brilliant little quarterback, even more must go to "Rusty" Roquet and Bill Love, behemoth tackles, for opening holes in the Farmer line wide enough to drive trucks through.

Anaheim scored its initial touchdown early in the first quarter, after Wally Fee, aided by superior blocking, shot off tackle from the Tustin 46-yard line, and sped to the 3-yard stripe before he was stopped. The elusive Tanaka started a trip through tackle, changed his mind, side-stepped a host of tacklers and proceeded around end to score standing up.

A second Anaheim touchdown resulted after a sustained drive from the Tustin 37, featuring line bombardments by Fee, Doherty, and Tanaka, Doherty scored.

The prettiest play of the day accompanied Anaheim's third late in the second period. Colonist line thrusts urged the ball 27 yards to the Tustin 32. Here again Tanaka, dashing at full speed behind perfect interference, reversed his field on a sharp cut back, and crossed the goal line without a single Farmer griddler laying hand on him.

Anaheim unleashed a series of tricky laterals in the third quarter which had Tustin baffled, and before the Farmers could realize it the visitors had advanced the ball to the 12. Tanaka then scored his third and final touchdown on a jaunt through guard.

Dudley, substitute fullback, tallied both of the Colonists final touchdowns on three yard trips.

Although the Colonists dominated the entire fray, the Tiller line repelled two touchdowns, but, once holding the rival team on the 8 yard line, and again on the 2.

Thompson, tackle, held their own in the Tustin line, while Mueller, halfback, and Tadlock, quarterback, played good defensive games.

Matches that may decide the Citrus Belt league tennis title are scheduled here tomorrow when Santa Ana battles Pomona, last year's champion.

Santa Ana's Class B squad also will play at home, starting its series with the Olympic club of Los Angeles on the Willard courts at 9 a. m. As soon as the "B" events are completed, about 11 o'clock, the Santa Ana and Pomona first stringers will take the courts.

Lewis Wetherell and Art Plum collide in first singles at 1 p. m. Plum defeated the Santa Ana ace in three sets in the inter-city matches last year.

The toast of Santa Ana junior college today was the Joe Herbert-Bill Greshner pass combination which last night clicked for a touchdown that enabled the Dons to return home with a 13-12 victory over San Bernardino; also rangy John Lehnhardt, who added the extra point that proved to be the margin of victory.

Fifty-one yards from a score in the third quarter and amply worried over the Braves' dogged determination to overcome Santa Ana's slim 7-0 lead, the Dons heaved a sigh of relief when Greshner, lila wingman, better sharply down the field and snatched a 40-yard pass out of the clutches of two defenders on the Braves' 20-yard line. Although temporarily covered, Greshner derway, outdistanced his pursuers to the goal.

The first half was all Santa Ana. After being repulsed three times when they had pushed well within the Braves' 20-yard line, the Dons took possession on their own 46 after a kick out of bounds.

Without wasting any time, Herbert, who replaced McCarter, fired a 15-yard pass to Greshner who gobbled up the ball on the Braves' 39 and loped all the way to the eight for a 46-yard net gain. Herbert hit left tackle for five and then made two more to place the leather on the one-yard line. The Braves then threatened to make their fourth goal line stand by stopping Dick Moore at right guard but Herbert scored off left tackle on the next play and Lehnhardt's conversion cleared the uprights by inches to give the Dons a 7-0 lead.

San Bernardino reached deep in their bag of tricks to bring out a handful of laterals, reverses, and spinners that at the start of the second half had the Dons completely bewildered. A kick by Pelky Cox that went out on the Santa Ana six gave the Braves their golden opportunity. Herbert's punt out was taken by Cox on the Don 45 and run back to the 21. A reverse to Rice netted eight to the Don 13 and on a fake reverse Cox went around left end to the five. Cox made four through center, then hit center for a touchdown. Cox's run for conversion failed.

A penalty for roughing the kicker gave Santa Ana a "first and ten" on their own 49. Then Herbert threw the winning touchdown pass to Greshner. Lehnhardt's kick was blocked.

Braves Score in Last Period
San Bernardino's last score came in the fourth period. Cox punted to Herbert on the Don 43. With two tacklers charging down on him Herbert attempted to scoop up the ball only to have it take a bad bounce, glance off his leg into the arms of Hungerford of San Bernardino who downed the pigskin on the Dons' 43.

A sustained march with reverses and spinners of other kinds of hokus-pokus playing a major part, enabled the Braves to work the ball down to the Santa Ana 8 from where Rice scored on a spinner through right tackle.

Santa Ana had the edge in statistics with 13 first downs, 163 yards gained from runs and 157 from passes for an aggregate of 310. San Bernardino made 10 first downs, 170 from running plays and 49 from passes for a total of 219.

The entire Don team played well, looked as formidable as they did against Riverside. The line was charging hard and fast to open big gaps in the Braves' forward wall. On defense the tackling was clean and decisive. Art Craft repeatedly knifed through the line to smear Brave backs in their tracks. Clarence Bolton, Ray Devine, and Carl Benson also looked strong and did Allen Titant at right end. Bob Spray celebrated his return to grid warfare by knocking down five San Bernardino passes and intercepting one. Herbert's punting and passing, M. Carter's running, and Hickman's defensive ability was outstanding in the backfield.

PROPOSALS TO ASSIST DEAF ARE OUTLINED

Projects for the coming year as they will be adopted in the Pacific zone were outlined by Miss Helen Scriven, vice president of the American Society for the Deaf, at a meeting of the Orange county league Thursday evening in the library of the Willard Junior High school.

Projects for children include promoting the founding of a new league in a nearby community; promoting public school lip reading classes; promoting voice control classes in the public schools; purchasing group hearing aids; promoting the installation of hearing equipment in churches, motion picture theaters, playhouses, civic auditoriums and schools.

Projects for adults include promoting the purchase of an audiometer by school board of civic agency for testing already done by the county league; Dr. Hiram Currey also spoke, reporting on plans of the league for the purchase of an audiometer for use in county schools.

Child - Stealing Suspect Arrested

Marigoldo Mesa, 19-year-old Anaheim Mexican, who was charged with child-stealing after he had eloped on September 29 with 17-year-old Lupe Barrera, daughter of Juan Barrera, 1042 North Patt street, was arrested last night by police in Tular, Calif.

Barrera immediately set out for the northern city to bring his daughter home, and was followed today by Captain Marcus Andrade and Sergeant Jim Piper, after the Barrera car had broken down enroute.

Mesa will be arraigned on the child-stealing charge on his return to Anaheim.

Don Benor, 18, well known amateur prize-fighter, also was charged with the same complaint on September 29, but was released later, when it was shown that he knew nothing of the offense.

Two-Day Total Of $30,838 For Permits

Building permits for Santa Ana for the first day of November totalled $30,245, several smaller permits having been issued late yesterday afternoon, adding to the $29,945 in permits issued earlier in the day as reported yesterday in The Register.

Today a total of $593 in permits was issued for five re-roofing jobs to be done immediately, making the total for the first two days of the month, $30,838, a record no one month has had this year in the first two days.

LONGSHOREMEN THREATEN TO STRIKE AGAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—(UP)—The union war cry of "hot cargo" echoed up and down the Pacific coast again today, bringing renewed threat of serious labor disputes to the nation's key western ports.

William J. Lewis, district president of the International Longshoremen's association, sounded the tocsin by dispatching written orders to district longshoremen to boycott ships arriving on the Pacific coast from Gulf of Mexico strike ports.

His order was accompanied by arrival of the first ship from the troubled area—the Katrina Luckenbach—which docked at San Pedro. Decision on what action union longshoremen will take was withheld until Monday.

Although banning inbound strike cargoes, Lewis' order permitted loading of two ships, one at Seattle and one at Crockett, Cal., with cargoes consigned to southern ports.

The union officials' order brought a bitter denunciation from Thomas G. Plant, president of the San Francisco Waterfront Employers' association, who declared the order violated the longshoremen's board award. He charged additionally that it was "open defiance" of a recent longshore ruling returned by M. C. Slope, federal arbitrator.

E. P. Marsh, federal labor conciliator, arrived in San Francisco, meantime, but declined to announce the reason for his visit.

House Shortage Balks Plan for J. C. Residence

Stating that the Santa Ana Junior college is being somewhat handicapped in the plans for a cooperative house for women, Mrs. Robert Northcross, dean of women, yesterday revealed a shortage of suitable houses for rent in Santa Ana and an overflow of applications for house manager.

Mrs. Northcross, is again asking for contact with some one with a suitable house for rent at a modest sum, pointing out that at Riverside, where the plan has been installed, a house was donated, thus eliminating the handicap. The estimate made last week that the approximate cost per girl would be $15 per month, was raised today to $17.50.

Stating the need for the house and citing examples, Mrs. Northcross announced that definite establishment of the house will not be made this year since the majority of out of town women are settled for the year.

The plan of the Berkeley house would be used, in which the house is operated by the women themselves under a trained house manager. Mrs. Northcross also stated that contributions of fruit and vegetables may be made to the house.

SUSPECT IN SHOOTING CASE GIVEN RELEASE

Tom McKean, 35, arrested by officers in connection with the shooting of Thomas Walker Callahan, escaped convict from Ohio, at Seal Beach last Sunday morning, has been released on his own recognizance to appear here again on November 18, Sheriff Logan Jackson reported today.

Jackson stated at the time of his arrest that although he was arrested and booked on an attempted robbery charge, that it was in connection with the shooting. As soon as McKean stepped out of the jail here, he was immediately placed under arrest again by Los Angeles police officers who were waiting for him and taken to Los Angeles.

He was wanted there for questioning on several holdups, in Los Angeles, it was said. The condition of Callahan, shot twice through the chest and once through the leg, was reported as satisfactory today from the Long Beach hospital where he is being confined.

Jackson was in Seal Beach yesterday where he was investigating the case. He reported that the leg wound probably was made by a Seal Beach police officer who shot at Callahan when he saw him running towards him with a gun in his hand last Sunday morning. The sheriff said that Callahan snapped his gun at the officer.

HONOR ORDER OF SCOUTS HAS DINNER

Approximately 125 members and past members of the honor tribe of Gorgonia of the Boy Scouts, and 25 guests met last night at Irvine park for a special dinner and program.

The Rev. Albert E. Kelly, of the United Presbyterian church, was the featured speaker, discussing the ideals of scouting and of the association, who declared the order violated the longshoremen's board award.

Floyd Stewart, Santa Ana, gave a short program of magic demonstration, and community singing was led by Scout Executive Harrison White, Fred Kobayashi, Garden Grove, led yells.

Al Spencer, Frank Hepburn, Bob Cook of San Juan Capistrano, and Howard Moore, of Orange, past members of the tribe, were introduced.

There was a short business session, and the meeting was closed by the blowing of taps by Lee Porter, of Placentia.

MISHANDLING OF FUNDS IS CHARGED

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 2.—(UP)—No end to the series of investigations touched off by discovery of a $24,000 shortage in the state treasury was in sight today as charges of irregularities spread to other state departments and counties.

Most recent development in the unprecedented string of inquiries was the action of Julian D. Roussel, secretary of the state highway commission, in holding up appointment to counties of $20,000,000 in gasoline tax funds pending outcome of an inquiry into suspected irregularities in the expenditure of county road funds.

Roussel said he had asked for complete explanations of reports that county supervisors had rented road equipment from themselves; that gasoline tax money was used for the improvement of private roads and similar accusations.

LATHROP SCHOOL CELEBRATES ACQUISITION OF AUDITORIUM!

The loud banging coming from the rear of the Lathrop Junior High School grounds yesterday had nothing to do either with war or even knocking. It was, as Principal H. G. Nelson explained proudly to curious visitors, the finishing touches being put on the school's new auditorium. "That's the stage floor being laid now, the last thing," explained Nelson. "See all the seats? They are just planks on 4 by 4 posts, but they're strong. No backs, but plenty of room. And walk down this aisle. Wide and roomy—look out that you don't get gravel on your shoe there—and there's a roof overhead that hardly looks at all. This is far better than anything we've had before. We plan to hold regular assemblies now."

The "new" auditorium is the old garage building that was formerly located at the southeast corner of the Lathrop grounds. It served as a school shop last year. Instead of being dismantled when the new shop was built, it was moved aside. "We've been disappointed about getting a new auditorium so many times before," said Nelson, "that I had an idea we might need the old garage building for one."

Use of the new auditorium was inaugurated yesterday with a reception and party for the Seventh grade.

Men's Clubs Will Present Program For J. C. Assembly

The four men's service clubs of the Santa Ana Junior college will sponsor the student body assembly to be held Tuesday, providing the students with entertainment in the form of skits and musical selections by the club members themselves.

A committee of students, headed this semester by Al Markey as chairman, and Miss Betty Lee and Art Coleman, selects the assembly programs throughout the year. They are directly responsible to the student executive board. If speakers are to be chosen, Director D. K. Hammond makes the selection.

LEROY GRIMM PRESIDENT OF BROTHERHOOD

YORBA LINDA, Nov. 2.—A Leroy Grimm was elected president of the Yorba Linda Community brotherhood at the regular meeting at the Friends church social hall last night. The Rev. Sheldon Newkirk of the Friends church was elected vice president and Henry Powell was elected secretary. A. G. Morris, acting president, was in charge of the session and introduced the Rev. J. Hunter Smith of the Methodist church, who presented J. F. Burke, of Santa Ana, as speaker of the evening.

"I would like to have society so organized and so Christian led that each individual would know he is secure. "Only in that way can the individual be secure, for there is no security for him except as the whole group participates," Burke said at the conclusion of his message, adding, "Christians are being challenged to bring about this transformation in society. Applied Christianity will accomplish these things; keep open minded, be tolerant, be servants to all, and lead the way to a new world order."

After bringing to his audience a picture of society as it now is organized, and indicating that the setup is in direct opposition to Christian principals, since the Christian principal is to give, he said, "A trial balance indicates the amount received more than the amount given to society. The present method is to insist that we get more than we give and it is absurd to believe society can exist on that basis. Business methods approach criminal methods of gain in many instances, and some people employ lawyers to see how to keep in crime without going to jail."

"As you analyze this situation, concerning charity, business and crime, you see our society is so organized as to make us as criminal as our conscience will let us be and we take great care not to educate our conscience."

The people who met 10,000 strong at Chicago to attempt to further the Townsend Old Age Pension plan are chiefly people who have been frugal and saving, he said. They are seeking security, the speaker said, seeking security: old age needs security and youth needs security, he indicated, declaring that "the gospel of Jesus Christ is for the people. The Kingdom of God will be brought in when His gospel is applied to all things; I wonder if Christianity will answer the needs of these seeking people and lead the way as this great challenge faces us."

All lectures will begin at 8 p. m. with the exception of Senator Nye, who is scheduled for 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In addition to an evening lecture, Admiral Byrd will also present a student's matinee at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when SANDY WALKER, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him.

At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces her to BOBBY LEWIS and Mrs. LEWIS and Bobby arranges to sell some bonds for Lewis. He sells them to Donald Montague. Lewis buys a car.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, is trying to locate WALLY EWING, a fugitive. He learns about the bond transaction and questions Bobby. The bonds were stolen. LARRY is arrested. Bobby undertakes to find out. Jean goes to her home town and believes it is where the armored car was made. LARRY gets proof that Lewis and Sandy both have criminal records.

The bank of which Jean's father is president is robbed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

The clatter of gunfire in the street jarred sharply on the ears of the people inside the bank. To the victims, standing helplessly by the wall with upraised hands, it brought a sudden stab of hope: to the gunmen it sounded the imperative need for hurry.

The red-haired man prodded the back of the trembling clerk with his automatic. "Come on, dopey!" he snarled. "Get going or I'll plug you, Hurry!" They had finished with the safe and the cage in which Mr. Hobart lay in a grotesque sprawl on the floor; now they were in taking bills from the cash drawer—there were many, but this red-haired man believed in being thorough—and stuffed them into the flour sack. At last it was finished.

The clerk turned to face the bandit. The bandit coolly took the sack with one hand, swung the gun against the clerk's left temple with a force that knocked him senseless, and ran out into the lobby.

"Come on, Winky!" he yelled. "We got to step on it!"

He opened the door and came out on the steps just as the village policeman crossed the street 50 yards away. The policeman was running—and puffing heavily, for he was a stout, middle-aged chap, unused to heavy exercise—and he was raising his revolver.

On the third step the sandy-haired chap they called Oklahoma. He was swaying slightly, and his face was pale beneath its tan, and blood had trickled down his body, beneath his clothes, and made his right foot feel sickeningly wet and warm; and he held his sub-machine gun at his waist and peered grinningly up at the window from which Buddy McGinnis had shot him.

He did not see the approaching policeman, but the red-haired man did; and he stood there, his right arm extended, and fired three shots. After each shot the kick of the heavy automatic jerked his hand in the air, and he brought it down with what seemed to be great deliberation and fired again. The policeman seemed to stumble as he came up over the curb, and his

YACHT CLUB HEADS TO DISCUSS SUITS TO PEACE SOON

NEWPORT BEACH, Nov. 2.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Newport Harbor Yacht club will be held this week and to review the situation caused by recent high winds, resulting in two suits for damages said to be pending by yacht owners.

Reports received by members of the board indicated that Arthur McDermott, Riverside, whose cruiser, "Amack," had its cabin ripped off, presumably from contact with G. L. Johnson's "Ocean Wail," is preparing legal action against Johnson. Johnson is said to be preparing to sue the Yacht club, for self protection.

Additional suits are expected to follow these two, it was stated, as at least a half dozen craft broke their moorings during the wind, and sustained varying damages.

Navy Man Fined On Driving Count

LAGUNA BEACH, Nov. 2.—The trial of Eugene L. La Monte of the U. S. S. Salt Lake City, was held Thursday, with Judge John Landfield, of San Juan Capistrano, presiding.

La Monte was booked on a reckless driving charge after the car which he was driving collided with another Saturday morning at the corner of Cypress street and the boulevard, six persons being injured. La Monte was fined $10, which is to be paid in four monthly payments, and his driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

seek security you must see that all are secure, you cannot be secure alone."

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Nov. 2.—Mrs. George Clough spent Tuesday in San Pedro as the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. Hansen.

H. J. Schmitz, who has been confined to his home by illness for the past week, has returned to work. James Harben, petty officer on the U. S. S. Tennessee, is spending a two weeks' leave at home with his family on Cedar street.

Mrs. B. Hatley and tiny daughter, Betty Lou, have returned to their home from a Long Beach hospital.

The sheriff bit the end off a cigar, spat it out in the general direction of a waste basket, and began to smoke.

"No, we're licked in these small towns—licked before we start," he said. "The only wonder is that they don't rob more of these banks. There's nothing much to stop 'em, as far as I can see."

He brooded over this for a moment. Then he looked up suddenly.

"Listen," he said, "I tell you what: put in a call for the Department of Justice men in Dover. You're a Federal Reserve bank, aren't you? Well, robbery of a Federal Reserve bank is a federal offense. Get the government men busy on it!"

Mr. Dunn reached for a telephone.

"I wish I'd thought of that sooner," he said. "The head of the Dover office is a Maplehurst man—Larry Glenn. I've known him since he was a baby."

Larry had just got back from lunch when the call came in. It had been a quiet day, and the sunlight on the pavement was beautiful, so much so that it made him think of the baseball park, and he was just reviewing the current state of affairs in his mind, to see whether he would be justified in "sneaking off to the ball game," when his telephone bell tinkled.

"Maplehurst is calling. Will you hold the wire?" said the operator voice, to tell him about the robbery.

Thoughts of the ball game fled from Larry's brain—not to re-enter it until many an eventful day had passed. He drew a scratch pad over to him and made notes as, with swift questions, he got from Mr. Dunn the salient features of the case. At last he hung up, pushed his chair back, and strode to the next room. Agents Tony LaRocco and Al Peters looked up expectantly.

"Get your hats," said Larry. "We're taking a run down to Maplehurst. Looks like Red Jackson has blown himself to another bank robbery."

Bridges Hall Attracts
Many Guests
For Beautiful Wedding

Bridges hall on the Pomona college campus, Claremont, whose stately interior has furnished setting for so many weddings of Pomona graduates, never received a more striking wedding party nor a more charming bride than this morning when Miss Josephine A. Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Ball, 111 West Seventeenth street, was wedded to Albert S. Paine, of Balboa, son of C. D. Paine of Lampasas, Texas.

Many Orange county friends and college associates of the bride and groom motored to Claremont for the rites held at 9 o'clock. Preceding the marriage service was a musical interval with Miss Mary Bruner as organist, and her twin sister, Miss Marion Bruner, as soloist. Organ numbers included Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song," also "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "Ouvre tes Yeux Bleus." Miss Marion Bruner sang "At Dawning" (Caldman) and "Calm As the Night" (Bach).

Bridal Party

Miss Ball, given in marriage by her father, wore lustrous ivory satin, its sleeves made long and extremely full, and the buttoned back sweeping in a long train. Her filmy veil was arranged in halo effect around her face, and she carried white orchids showered with lilies of the valley.

Two sisters of the bride, Mrs. William B. Hewitt and Miss Winifred Ball, and a sister of the groom, Miss Edith Paine, were prominent in the ceremony. Mrs. Hewitt, here from Davis for the event, was Miss Maybelle Ball, herself wedded little more than a year ago at rites of equal beauty in Glenwood Mission Inn. Her gown as matron of honor, was of deep rust chiffon velvet and her flowers were snowy pompon dahlias.

Miss Ball and Miss Paine wore crepe frocks identical in design even to the demure little white collars. Miss Ball's was in pale rust tones than her sister's honor-matron costume, and Miss Paine's was in rose rust shade. Both carried arm clusters of white sweet peas. Little three-year-old Helen Jean Honer, daughter of the Allison Honers, was a veritable doll of a flower girl in her brief frock of ruffled pink taffeta, and with her tulle-trimmed silver basket of rose petals.

Mr. Paine had the assistance of Messrs. Joseph M. Ferguson, Glendora, as best man, Douglas MacDonald of Los Angeles, and William Tachner of Azusa, as ushers.

Future Plans

Dr. William E. Roberts, of Los Angeles, former pastor of Santa Ana First Presbyterian church, read the service which was followed by a brief interval of congratulations before the young couple sped away on their honeymoon. For traveling, the bride changed to a smart tulle in copper shades with brown accessories. They will return to make a home in Balboa where Mr. Paine is manager of the Marine Hardware and Yacht outfitting company. He had his schooling in Texas with special business course at Johnston Secretarial school, Santa Ana.

His bride, prominent in Santa Ana High school and Junior college circles, is a member of Delta Phi Upsilon, national honorary fraternity. She took her B. A. degree at Pomona college in 1931, and additional degrees at U. C. L. A. After two years of kindergarten teaching at Wilson school, she was elected this year to teach kindergarten at Wilson school, Santa Ana.

MacMullens Are Hosts
At Trocadero for Birthday Event

While the majority of this week's parties have been inspired by the annual recurrence of the "season of witches and warlocks," the thoroughly delightful dinner at which Mrs. Benjamin J. MacMullen was hostess, was based on an entirely different theme.

For Thursday was the birthday anniversary of Mr. MacMullen and in compliment to him, his wife planned a formal dinner in Los Angeles at the Trocadero, inviting half a dozen friends from that city and from San Francisco, to share her hospitality.

They were part of a gay crowd on holiday pleasure bent, the women in the smartest of formal gowns enhanced by priceless orchids. At an adjoining table, Louis St. Mayer was entertaining a score of guests. Other celebrities of screen and stage life were in the crowd, one of the most interesting being Sophie Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMullen remained over night in Los Angeles, returning yesterday afternoon to their home, 2418 Heliotrope drive.

Sixty relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony, which was read by Dr. Perry Hopper, pastor of Portland Presbyterian church. Pink and white gladioluses and wild fern provided decorations. The bride's sister, Miss Rosemary Evans, was maid of honor. Virgil Dunkin attended his brother as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunkin went to Seattle for their honeymoon. The bridegroom has recently accepted a position with the Puget Sound Light and Power company in Tacoma, it was learned by his parents. GAY STAG PARTY
Not all pre-nuptial parties find their inspiration in the bride-to-be, for once in awhile the bridegroom-elect is brought into the limelight. Such was the case this week when George Daws of Anaheim, so soon to claim the hand of charming Peggy Tadlock, was complimented at a stag party by Carroll Ault. It was in the Ault home, 2456 Riverside drive, that the gay affair was staged, and Mrs. Ault really had little to do with it beyond preparing the spicy Spanish dishes served on bright pottery after the session of cards. There was even a surprise gift, a handsome card table which the host and his invited guests, Messrs. Frances Norton, Carl Lykke and Dr. Don Cleland, Santa Ana; Donald Reed, Alhambra; Lawrence Polier, Anaheim, and Curtis Youell, Inglewood, presented Mr. Daws.

GAY BRIDAL PARTIES
Gayest of the succession of parties which have centered around Miss Josephine Ball since her engagement to Albert S. Paine was announced, was the rehearsal dinner of Thursday evening at which Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Ball complimented their daughter. All the young people who today took part in the formal wedding rites in Bridges hall, Claremont, were drawn together for this function which was succeeded by an exacting rehearsal in the beautiful college auditorium. This concluded the busy whirl of pre-nuptial courtesies which have included among other affairs, a shower at which Mrs. Allison Moner entertained, a similar event given by three hostesses, the Misses Mary and Marion Bruner and Miss Mary Blackman, and a gay party in Long Beach staged by her Delta Phi Upsilon sisters.

SEWING CLUB
For the past 25 years, the members of the Round the Corner club have been assembling for just such delightful sessions as that of Thursday afternoon, when they were guests in the home of Mrs. G. E. Bruns, 1209 Spurgeon street. The hostess served refreshments at the close of an afternoon of chatting and sewing. Guests were Mesdames S. M. Davis, Dama Smith, E. E. Sprague, F. W. Mansur, A. M. Gardner, F. A. Robinson and F. P. Jayne. Mrs. Sprague will entertain the group in November.

Girl Reserve organizations of the Y. W. C. A. are availing themselves of the opportunity which Halloween week offers for merry parties. The affair had been planned by cabinet members including Maxine Knight, president, and Helen Lowe, Dorothy Jenkins, Isabel McCormack, Roberta Nichols, Helen Hicks, Josephine White, Betty Neff, Norma Area, Betty Hammond, Joy Townsley, Mary Coffman, and Kay Palmer. New members of the group were on the clean-up committee.

Judah Taken Captive

Text: II Kings 25:1-12
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 3.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance
The Babylonian captivity is a tragic chapter in Jewish annals that occupies an important place in history. Here we are concerned chiefly with the religious and social lessons to be derived from it.

Like all great catastrophes, it is to be studied not in its immediate causes, but in the events and circumstances that led to it and that made it almost inevitable when the final crash came. The beginning of the downfall of Judah was in the divided nation. Palestine is not large. It would have required all the strength of that small territory incorporated under one strong rule to have established any measure of effective resistance to the warring empires of the ancient world.

The little land lay between these empires, occupying something of the same position that Belgium occupied in the World War. The strong kingdom that David established, and that Solomon brought to the heights of greater glory, weakened in the dissensions and rebellions that followed Solomon's death.

When Solomon died and Rehoboam came to the throne, there was a strong demand that the burdens of the people should be lightened. Rehoboam took counsel from two classes of people, the young men who advised him to rule with a strong hand and the older men who advised him to correct the injustices of which the people complained.

Rehoboam's weakness and his heady course in following the advice of the young men led to a rebellion in which the kingdom of David and Solomon was rent in twain, and the two kingdoms, the southern Kingdom of Judah, and the northern Kingdom of Israel, took their place with parallel columns of rulers.

In the history of the Kingdom of Judah we have the story of the good King Josiah. But the history of kings and kingdoms is the record of how weak, perverse, and incompetent monarchs have come from strong and righteous predecessors. The northern Kingdom of Israel had already fallen before Assyria, and now Judah, in a time of difficulty and danger, was under the rule of the weak King Zedekiah. The power of Babylon was dominant.

There might have been reasonable hope for a measure of autonomy on the part of Judah, in much the same way that Palestine later had a measure of autonomy under Roman rule, but that hope disappeared when Zedekiah rebelled.

The rebellion immediately brought serious consequences. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came with a great army and besieged Jerusalem.

Jerusalem suffered the fate that great capitals have always suffered in the hands of invading foes. The temple and the palace were destroyed, and every great house in the city was laid low with fire. The people who were left were carried off to Babylon, with only the poorest left to be vine-dressers and husbandmen.

The highest teachings and the spiritual recovery of Israel are associated with this captivity. It is these teachings that future lessons will emphasize.

Special Service For Young People Sunday Evening

A candle-light service will be held at the Unitarian church tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock, when the young men of the Fellowship club are initiated into the national Young People's Religious Union by a delegation of young people from the Pomona Candle-lighters.

A brief address on the work of the Y. P. R. U. will be given at the close of the service by Miss Theodora Corey, of Santa Barbara, director of the Y. P. R. U. for Southern California. Following the service, supper will be served to the congregation, in honor of the new Candle-lighters.

Commenting on the day's program, the Rev. Julia W. Budlong, minister, said: "The morning service will conclude the series of four addresses on the subject: 'What do Unitarians Give in Place of What They Take Away?' The subject tomorrow is 'What Do We Give in Place of the Lord God Jehovah?' It will consider the world view of the ancient Hebrews, who evolved a tribal God to help them in their struggles with their adversaries, and in their efforts to become civilized, and contrast it with the world view of modern science, and seek an answer to the question: 'What do we need to help us overcome our obstacles and our temptations? Does a God of Wrath and Vengeance offer much assistance? Are the Ten Commandments a sufficient guide for morality? In whom can we put our trust?'

"The morning service is at 11 o'clock, and both it and the afternoon Candlelight service are open to the general public with a cordial invitation to visitors to attend."

and dahlia. Master Neal Maccurda assisted his mother in serving refreshments.

The next meeting will be held November 21 at 8:15 p. m. with Mrs. Charles Fuller, 1014 Louise street.

MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner
1 cup canned asparagus soup
1 slice beef potroast cooked with boiling onions, carrots and sliced celery
Lettuce salad with chili mayonnaise dressing
Pineapple tapioca pudding 2 (tbsp.)
Black coffee or clear tea
Calory total...450

A can of asparagus soup will serve four if you do this, scale 2 cups milk with cream poured off, add salt and pepper and the can of soup. For all but the diet meal put a small spoonful of lightly whipped coffee cream in each cup, and the family will never know you've held out on the soup.... Besides it's good for them. For the salad dressing simply add your best home-made chili sauce to mayonnaise until it suits you. Of course the diet meal mixes its own brand and uses mineral oil mayonnaise.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Fool Proof Dumplings
2 cups flour sifted with 4 tps baking powder and 1/2 tsp salt
1 tps shortening worked into flour

1 egg, beaten, with milk to fill remainder of cup
Sift all dry ingredients into a bowl, add the shortening and mix. Stir the liquid into the flour and let the dough stand 10 minutes.

Whatever liquid is used for cooking the dumplings, don't have it boiling at a gallop, unless you want a paper paste. The liquid should be just at the boiling point, a gentle simmer, then the dumplings will stay whole and do you proud. Cover or not, as you please, they'll be good either way.

Sour Cream Cookies
1/2 cup fat (preferably butter)
2 cups sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 tsp vanilla
3 1/2 cups flour sifted with a little salt

2/3 cup sour cream foamed with 1 tsp soda.

Prepare creamed part, add the unbeaten eggs and whip until you have a rich fluffy mass. The vanilla goes in at this stage. Sift the flour (pastry flour) and prepare the sour cream. Alternate the two in mixing. Put on a lightly floured board, and roll only a small piece at a time, laying aside all trimmings to be rolled at one time. That's to avoid different textures in the cookies.

If you decide to ice-box the dough be sure that you make up your mind before adding the sour cream, because a scant teaspoon of baking powder must first be sifted with the flour, then go ahead with the mixing as usual.

If the myth-writers of ancient Greece were alive today, they'd shove Tartarus off his rock and put me in his place....the word tantalizing comes from the peculiar type of punishment meted out to Mr. T. for sundry offenses. Certainly it is tantalizing to read this column all week, then come plop up against Saturday's admonition to those who are overweight and plain fat. But that's just one of these things, so what's to do?

Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll mail you the easiest, most satisfying reducing diet you've ever tried.... and it works, too, if you make up your mind to play fair with it. Just ask for our Safe and Sane reducing diet.

Au revoir until Monday.
ANN MEREDITH.

THE TINYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The Tines eyed the pumpkin and wee Goldy shouted, "Oh, it's grand! I wonder, though, if it is strong enough to hold us all."

"We've had some thrilling rides, before. Please tell us just what is in store. We might get up all right, and promptly have an awful fall."

"My goodness," the old witch replied, "You certainly don't think that I'd play tricks on happy little tots? Why, I am fond of you."

"I made the pumpkin as a treat, and with no accidents you'll meet. Just rest assured I'm being fair in anything I do."

"Your word is good enough for me. I think we're lucky as can be," said Scouty. "Kindly tell us, though, just how to steer the thing."

"I'll be the captain of the crew and do what'er you say to do. I'll bet, when we get up, the wind will make the pumpkin swing."

"Of course it will, but that's all right. If you hang on with all your might," replied the witch. "Twirl steer itself. Just take it easy, son."

"A very strange land is nearby, that you'll drop down to, from the sky. I almost wish that I was going, you will have such fun."

"Okay, please send us way up high."

The pumpkin wings clapped very fast. The pumpkin shivered. Then, at last, it slowly left the ground, as all the Tines waved goodbye.

CASTLE THAT CLIMBS A ROCK

ACTUALLY climbing a huge rocky slope in northern Slovakia, the venerable castle at Orava stands today above the river Vah, one of Czechoslovakia's most historic and picturesque fortresses. The castle, clambering the entire height above the valley reaches its summit 360 feet up, where the citadel seems to hang into space.

Being near the Polish border, Orava castle, which dates from the 13th century, guarded the pass for the Hungarians. Late in the 17th century, however, the stronghold fell to the invading Turks. But when King John Sobieski of Poland forced the invaders out of Vienna, in 1683, he reconquered Orava castle.

Spreading over successive levels of the high slope, the castle is one of the rare sights of Czechoslovakia. Its picture appears on the 40 haleru stamp of 1926-7.

FACTS ABOUT TAX

We just got our tax bills. Actually we were quite agreeably dumfounded after the howl that has come forth from certain influential sources. Had the law been so strict, at this time, the facts are out, you'd be wise to buy before rents eat you up. Houses are procurable from $1000 up, some that are far out will soon be close in. Santa Ana is sure to grow, then what? Well, just buy now and take no chance.

SCIENTISTS AS THEOLOGIANS

From time to time we hear of outstanding scientists expressing themselves on matters of theology and religion. The latest scientist who has done this is Dr. Alexis Carrell, Nobel prize winner in 1912. In his newly published book, "Man the Unknown", he admits the curative power of prayer, and gives the weight of his influence as a scientist to fortune telling and mental telepathy.

His colleagues in the scientific world have been surprised to learn of his attitude on such matters beyond the bounds of scientific research.

Some theologians, while welcoming the opinions of a man standing high in the scientific world, hasten to say that his views on such matters are interesting, but are not commensurate in authority with his views on scientific matters. When he speaks on such matters as prayer, fortune telling and mental telepathy, he speaks outside his field, and is to be given only as much credence as any other intelligent layman.

There has always been a tendency, on the part of people, to accept the views of men, who are authorities in one field of human knowledge, in every other field of knowledge. We are thinking of one noted authority in obstetrics who is often quoted as a great authority in biblical interpretation. His views on those matters have long since been given up by leading scholars in the theological world.

When General Grant is quoted to sustain the authenticity of every incident in the Old Testament, his view is accepted by many people, not because he was a biblical scholar, but because he was a military genius.

It is encouraging to those who believe in the verities of the Christian religion to have the support of all intelligent men and women, and especially those who stand out among the leaders in scientific research.

George J. Romanes, Sir Oliver Lodge, Professor Milliken, and now Dr. Alexis Carrell, are leaders in their fields. For discoveries in their special fields they speak with authority. But in the field of religion and theology, they are to be followed only as far as the leaders in that field have been able to go.

If we want the last word in physics, we will follow Professor Milliken. If we want the last word in some phases of modern medicine, we will follow Dr. Carrell. But if we want the last word in religious metaphysics, it is better to go to such men as Professor Weiman of Chicago or Professor Macintosh of Yale.

In these days of religious and theological divisions, it sometimes hurts to have a scientific authority placing his stamp of approval, as did Sir Oliver Lodge, on the reality of spiritualism, and Dr. Carrell on the scientific reality of clairvoyance.

We prefer the authority of Him who taught the simplicities of religion two thousand years ago in Galilee by virtue of a spiritual insight never possessed by another. And they who have studied his mind and spirit by every known method of metaphysical research are authorities in that realm.

The danger of such teachings as those of Sir Oliver Lodge and Dr. Carrell is that it draws the minds of men and women away from those fundamentals of religion which appeal not only to humble and devout spirits, but to men and women of common sense and intelligence.

THE CORN-HOG REFERENDUM

Those who have had any doubts about the permanence of the Agricultural Adjustment act must cease to doubt as a result of the referendum taken by the Department of Agriculture at Washington. The vote was more than six to one for its continuance.

The farmers of all the states were polled, and the majorities were sweeping from coast to coast. In New England and here on the coast, the vote was light. But those who voted gave the A. A. A. the same endorsement as the corn states.

It is the first act intended to help the farmers that has won their support. They saw real money coming to them through the A. A. A.

This was not true of previous acts. Ohio, which is supposed to be losing interest in the New Deal, gave just as large a majority for the act as Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas.

In view of this referendum, neither party would dare to withdraw its support from the A. A. A. Just what the Republican platform will say on this matter will be of interest, for in the effort of the party leaders to discredit the whole New Deal it will be difficult to turn face or straddle on that question.

The party which would win must have the farmer vote. So, it would seem as if the farmers are about certain to have both parties "in the bag" as far as their interests are concerned.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW IN NEW YORK

For 33 years, ever since there has been an annual automobile show, it has been held in January in New York, followed by shows in all the cities of the country soon after. This was done to get ready for the spring buying, when it was supposed automobiles were more likely to be bought.

The period between the show and the time when people were supposed to buy was short. All the plants were strained to capacity for the intervening weeks. There always was a long period of waiting for those who wanted their new cars before the first of May.

The manufacturers have at last seen that it was poor business, both for themselves and for the country, to put the show on so near Spring. It left the last quarter of the year practically dead for the automobile industry.

Thousands of workers were laid off. Then came the first quarter of the year rush, people waiting for the new cars, and the manufacturers unable to meet the demand.

The new system will make it possible to distribute the load evenly over the whole year. It may be that no more cars will be sold, but they will be sold more evenly through the year. One of the great defects of modern industry is the seasonal character of many industries, with the consequent seasonal unemployment so destructive of labor morale and the stability of retail trade.

The automobile industry, the leading industry of this country, has set a good example to all other industries. Coming later in the industrial period, it has had the advantage of the experience of industries which had to progress by the trial and error period.

It should now become the pace-setter in those methods which will stabilize industry and business in general. This it appears to be doing in the new system of inaugurating the automobile season.

JUDGES SPEAK OUT IN NEW JERSEY

Kidnaper Hauptmann lost his appeal for a new trial to the New Jersey court of errors and appeals on the grounds that the presiding judge had exceeded his right and duty, in his comments to the jury on the evidence produced against the defendant Hauptmann.

It is recalled that the judge, in his charge to the jury, summarized the case in such a manner as to leave but little doubt that he believed Hauptmann guilty.

Not only did the judge comment on the value of the testimony offered, but he commented unfavorably on the character of some of the witnesses produced by the defendant, and the defendant himself. Then he went on to explain the great value of circumstantial evidence, especially when such evidence was corroborated by other circumstantial evidence.

A jury could scarcely have done otherwise than convict when the judge completed his remarks.

In upholding the judge's right, as well as his duty to instruct the jury as he did, the higher court said:

"The notion that it is any part of our judicial system that the jury, whether in civil or in criminal cases, must be kept in ignorance of the impression made by the testimony upon the trial judge is absolutely devoid of foundation."

"The brief under this point ignores one of the most thoroughly settled rules in our New Jersey criminal jurisprudence. That rule is that it is always the right and often the duty of a trial judge to comment on the evidence and give the jury his impressions of its weight and value, and such comment is not assignable for error so long as the ultimate decision on disputed facts is plainly left to the jury."

Trial judges in our own superior courts now have the right to comment on the evidence presented in a criminal case. It will be interesting to observe how far they are willing to go, and how far the higher courts will permit them to go.

Millions in Art

Christian Science Monitor

A great deal of art appreciation today has a considerable economic basis. As much as we may desire to shun the pecuniary world when we turn to the fine arts, very palpable reminders of monetary values are continuously forced to our attention. When Whistler's "Mother" was exhibited a few years ago in America, the display gained considerable showmanship from the armed guard which was necessary, ostensibly, to protect it. A common topic among the crowds which viewed the canvas was its financial worth.

On November fifth, an exhibition of paintings and drawings by Vincent Van Gogh is to be shown in the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The collection is valued at $1,000,000. The pictures are now on their way to America, and plans have been made for their transfer from the steamer under heavy guard.

Supreme paradox. Vincent Van Gogh suffered degradation and impoverishment during his life (1853-1890). Most of his pictures he could not give away, for no one would accept them. For one canvas of "Sunflowers" he asked $100. No sale. Some time ago the same canvas was sold for $50,000. He offered a young American artist an oil painting for some bread. Van Gogh received the bread, but the unwelcome payment was turned down.

Rembrandt's pauper burial was not enough of a lesson. Time and experience do not correct social misunderstanding of the artist. There are today some promising contemporaries, who are buffeted around in much the manner of poor Van Gogh. Either they are in advance of their times, or somehow they fail to fit into the grooves of current fads. Who knows what pictures in utter oblivion today will merit the armed guard of tomorrow?

Oil Leaders Divided on Policies

Long Beach Press-Tribune

With crude oil prices of early 1935 not only restored by two major companies, but with the new quotations even higher than those prevailing before the radical August slash, the outlook for all phases of the industry should be more encouraging than it has been at any time for five years.

This prospect is modified somewhat by reports that other leading companies are holding out against the raise, and may fight it. Heretofore, Standard Oil has set prices for the California area. This is followed by Shell.

Opponents of the boost assert that the move was influenced not so much by general conditions as by a contest in Kettleman Hills, where the output has jumped to more than 100,000 barrels a day, and is said to be 40,000 barrels out of line because of a producers' race. Until this field is under control, the trade will be jeopardized; while if the yield of Kettleman can be held to around 50,000 barrels, the whole situation will improve.

Which of these policies will prevail in the end may not be safely forecast. Justification for the higher prices is not difficult to find at Signal Hill and other Southern California fields, where the bonus process has given a measure of relief from the drastic cut imposed by the majors some weeks ago.

For a number of years petroleum has been passing through evolutionary stages, painful in operation, but perhaps leading to more permanent stabilization. An important new phase of development seems now to be at hand.

'FORWARD!'

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

WOODBINE
The garden blooms are falling
Beneath the autumn sun,
They'll soon be gone
From hill and lawn
And dropping one by one.
But ere the forest branches
Loom, leafless, overhead
The woodbine gleams
By hills and streams
Tricked out in flaming red.

It creeps across the meadow
And on the garden wall;
It climbs the trees
Where at their ease
The crows and jay birds call.
It seems to say: "Don't worry;
The fields are not yet bare.
Though skies are gray
Let's still be gay
For Indian summer's here."

The cricket in the pasture
May cry "Six weeks to frost;
Not long before
The blizzards rear
And trees are tempest-tossed."
But still by barn or meadow,
On dark or sunny days,
Beneath the trees
That dot the less
The dauntless woodbines blaze.

ONE SERIOUS DIFFICULTY

It might be possible to make New York noiseless, as its mayor is trying to do, but how would anybody know it was New York?

PARAGRAPHS

By Robert Quillen

Political parson: A preacher who discusses public business and opposes your pet ideas.

Roosevelt shouldn't expect too much. Every doctor loses patients as fast as he cures them.

Brief synopsis of the preachers advice given Mr. Roosevelt: (1) "What a man!" and (2) "Repent ye!"

One explanation of things is that you never hear people applaud mere goodness.

We can't be dragged into this war. The law won't let Mr. Morgan make any bad loans.

THERE IS NO SEX EQUALITY. A MALE COOK OR DRESSMAKER CAN'T GET BY WITH BUM WORK BECAUSE OF HIS SEX.

Beer says he will keep a fine bull on his ranch. Well, it's only fair. It has kept him up for several years.

The proportion hasn't changed. Of the earth's first three men, one was a sucker and one soured by envy.

A cultured community is one where the book agent must conceal his mission till he gets inside the door.

AMERICANISM: Getting educated to be somebody; using bad grammar to keep from seeming stuck-up.

As a nobody he is called "Jones." As a prominent citizen he is "Mr. Jones." As a great man he is "Jones" again.

Civilized land: One where vile citizens are permitted to get rich operating gambling schemes while good men live in want.

If it's a free country, why is everybody sore when he discovers his hired help is working for somebody else after hours?

THE FINAL TEST OF BROTHERLY LOVE IS TO GET BEHIND FORTY SLOW CARS AND HAVE ONE BEHIND YOU HONKING FOR GANGWAY.

Happy days are here again! From every direction you hear the sharp, anguished cry of the hooked sucker.

The final proof of good manners is to sell a drug store patron a one-cent stamp and thank him.

Newspaper writers are more helpful than preachers. They didn't wait for Mr. Roosevelt to ask for their advice.

You can tell which crowd is in the wrong. It is the one that is wildly excited and fierce and unrelenting.

CORRECT THIS SENTENCE: "BILL ASKED ME NOT TO TELL ANYBODY, NOT EVEN HIS WIFE."

SAID THE MAN, "SO I WON'T TELL HER."

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

TOWARDS PLANNED CHAOS
We need more planning in the nation and less planning OF the nation.

This is not a mere play of words. Between the word IN and the word OF as used above lies the difference between progress and decay for America.

No government can plan the life of a great nation like the United States, unless it takes all power to itself and actually runs the nation's enterprise.

Not even the New Dealers propose any such sweeping assumption of all power and all responsibility by the government.

If we are not to centralize all power in the government, then, just what can government do and what can it not do in the way of planning?

Short of assuming complete control and direction of the nation's total enterprise, the government can plan scarcity, but it cannot plan abundance.

And that, of course, is what we are doing. We are planning scarcity in order to raise prices.

But when, in an age of potential abundance, you plan scarcity, you do the exact opposite of what is needed—you increase unemployment.

ment and reduce purchasing power among the masses.

If the present situation were not concealed by lavish outlays of government spending and subsidy, it would be glaringly apparent that our "planning" to date has done just this--it has increased unemployment (save for employment due to artificial stimulation through public funds) and has reduced mass purchasing power (save for the public money hurled into circulation).

Private enterprise either can or cannot become master instead of victim of its new productive power. The only way to find out whether it can or cannot, whether it will or will not, is to release its creative energies, save for essential regulatory rules of the game, and give it every atom of encouraging leadership we can.

If we want a "planned economy" let's be logical enough to realize that we cannot have it save at the price of a sweeping surrender of the principles of private enterprise and political liberty.

Let's go one way or the other, and not delude ourselves that we can go north and south at the same time.

USEFUL WORK

"Come, come, Henry. Get to work. The period is half over and you haven't anything done."

"I don't want to make such a fool of myself," said Henry, stubbornly planting his elbows on the desk and supporting his chin on his fist.

"Don't talk to me like that. You have to do your work, so the sooner you begin the better."

"You call making a model of a paper box that won't be any good anyhow a piece of work? Say, I can make real boxes. I don't have to make foolishness."

"You can go and tell the principal that."

"Sure I'll tell him."

Henry was one of the boys who had working papers and a job. He lost his job and the law forced him back to school. The manual training lesson he objected to called for the making of a working drawing and model of a one-inch cube. His tools were a ruler, a compass, a lead pencil and eraser. His material was a piece of oak tag, a semi-stiff glazed paper used for making models and another sheet of drawing paper. Henry had been using machines and turning out a manufactured product for the market. This sort of work seemed utterly foolish to him. And for him it was. For many other children it would be.

Children need real work just as grown-up people do. They want to make things that can be used in actual service. They want to work on things that are to be used. They want to cook and eat the result. They want to sew and wear or put to use what they have made. They want to make chairs and tables they can take home and use. If they make a kite they want to fly it; a boat, they want to sail it. They want real work, not theoretical schemes for work.

I believe many teachers give lessons and exercises merely because they are set in the course of study and programmed in the daily routine. The exercises bear no relation to anything the child has in mind, make no connection with any other lesson. The teacher gives the exercise at the scheduled time in the prescribed manner.

ner precisely as a nurse would give medicine on time, trusting to the wisdom of the superior in charge and accepting no responsibility whatever for the work of its effect on the pupil. The teacher is not to blame for this. It is the mandate of the supervisor. But how could a supervisor know what lessons were to be needed for Henry? He could not know, and there is the answer to many a failure in the schools today.

There must be a course of study, a program, and careful supervision. Order is the first law of life. But the idea that the teacher on the spot is to interpret that course in relation to the pupils as individuals must also be regarded. All children must have work that is actual, honest and worthy of the time, money and effort put on it. And the work must be stimulating, creative, driving to newer and better forms of expression.
